

Rapid response to biomedical challenges and threats

Wladek Minor¹, Marek Grabowski², David Cooper³, Ivan Shabalin⁴, Zbigniew Dauter⁵, Marcin Cymborowski⁶, Dariusz Brzezinski⁷, Joanna M Macnar⁸

¹University of Virginia ²University of Virginia, ³University of Virginia, ⁴University of Virginia, ⁵ANL, ⁶A. Mickiewicz University, ⁷Poznan University of Technology, ⁸University of Warsaw

wladek@iwonka.med.virginia.edu

Although the dynamical refinement improves the fit significantly compared to the kinematical refinement, its current implementation still does not describe the electron diffraction data fully. To further improve the fit, it is necessary to properly account for further effects like crystal imperfections, effects of inelastic scattering and also the bonding effects in the electrostatic potential.